

Our 2010 Buyer's Guide

Welcome to the Cardiac Interventions Today 2010 Buyer's Guide, our comprehensive guide to the devices used in coronary and cardiac interventions.

As we prepare to enter our fourth year of publication, Cardiac Interventions Today continues to focus on the goal of providing timely and comprehensive information that will complement daily practices, as well as provide a reference resource for all who are engaged in interventional coronary and cardiac care.

With those goals in mind, enclosed you will find device charts consisting of product listings that provide the names, manufacturers, sizes and dimensions, unique characteristics, and approved indications for virtually every interventional device currently available in the United States. With new products and techniques being explored and put to use every day, we hope that having this information easily accessible both in print and on the Web at www.cardiacinterventionstoday.com will help to quickly answer many of the questions you have regarding the devices that are currently on the market.

We would be remiss if we did not thank our industry partners for their efforts in sharing and reviewing the specifications and details of their many products to ensure the completeness of this Buyer's Guide. We welcome your comments and feedback so that we may continue to improve this product in the coming years.

The Cardiac Interventions Today staff would also like to wish our Editorial Advisory Board members, authors, clients, and readers a happy and healthy New Year.

Regards,

A stylized, handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Craig McChesney".

Craig McChesney
Publisher