Surgical Insights and Patient Selection for AlloFlo

On Glaucoma Case Files, Craig J. Chaya, MD, joins Rachel G. Simpson, MD, and Roya Garakani, DO, at the John A. Moran Eye Center to discuss the AlloFlo (Iantrek) supraciliary procedure. Dr. Chaya reviews the biointerventional properties of the AlloFlo and provides insights into selecting the most appropriate patients for this procedure. He also shares the case of a male patient in his mid-60s who had a history of tube shunt surgery and was intolerant of medications. In addition, Dr. Chaya describes his surgical technique and outlines postoperative considerations.

Ab Externo Xen Gel Stent Implantation

On MIGS Unplugged, Oluwatosin Smith, MD, sits down with Iqbal Ike K. Ahmed, MD, FRCSC, and Arsham Sheybani, MD, to discuss the evolving use of the Xen Gel Stent (AbbVie) over time and the cases in which she uses this MIGS device. She describes the differences in her approaches to adult and pediatric patient populations and comments on maximizing outcomes with an ab externo technique.

Innovative Technologies to Revolutionize Practice

On Ophthalmology off the Grid, I. Paul Singh, MD, sits down with hosts Blake Williamson, MD, MPH, and Gary Wörtz, MD, to discuss the technologies and innovations he uses in his practice, with a focus on laser floater removal. Dr. Singh reviews 1-Step vitreous removal technology (Vista Ophthalmics) for treating symptomatic floaters and how it has revolutionized his practice and provided great outcomes for his patients. He also describes his experiences with MIGS technologies that have improved his practice.
